

North Penn Art launches its new Company Website

Lansdale, PA - September 28, 2014 — North Penn Art, a family owned business specializing in custom framing and awards services, is excited to announce the launch of its new company website (<http://www.northpennart.com>). The new modern design is enhanced with a host of new content and improved features. The site boasts a brand new user-friendly navigation system, improved functionality, expanded content and also integrates North Penn Art's social media activities.

"Our goal with the new design was to create a highly functional website that will make the users experience more enjoyable, making it much easier to find and access information," said Eric Gross Marketing. "Visitors will be delighted with the clean interface and improved functionality." In addition, customers will be able to use the Interactive Frame Design tool, which allows you to see how a completed frame design will look before the framing process begins giving you opportunities to test and try various combinations of frames and styles. To view the new website, go to www.northpennart.com.
